NOT INCLUDED

- Accented letters (é è à ñ ü ç and others): Kester is for English text only
- § ¶ † ‡ (section and footnote marks)
- £ ¢ ½ ¼ ¾ © ° + = ×
- The ffl ligature
- Bold and italic styles

Four printed versions of every lowercase letter and three of every capital (one each of X and Z, since only one usable example survives in the book). Each variant comes from a different page and was checked against its main letter's weight. With Contextual Alternates on, as it is by default, Kester rotates through them as you type.

The creature commonly takes him for one of its own species, and suffers him to approach without mistrust. No sooner has he reached his victim, than he pierces it with a lance, which he had kept concealed, and thus secures his prize. At other times several persons surround holes made in the ice, and when one or more seals make their appearance, they dispatch them with spears. In the peninsula of Kamtschatka, the seal-fishery is likewise an important occupation.

FROM THE BOOK

Adventures of Famous Travellers in Many Lands. William L. Allison Company, New York, c. 1893–1894. Running head: "The Romance of Travel."

The type is a modern roman, the sturdy, upright book face that British and American foundries cast for most books and newspapers of the 19th century. The family traits are all here: vertical stress, a level bar on the e, ball ends on a, c, r and y, and bracketed serifs. Faces like this are often called Scotch, after the Edinburgh foundry of William Miller, whose versions American founders copied widely.[2]

WHERE EACH GLYPH CAME FROM

206 of Kester's 221 drawn glyphs are real impressions from the book. The other 15 were rebuilt because the book never prints them; drawn parts use stroke widths measured from the real letters and the same mottled ink texture.

Free for personal and commercial use. Kester is released under the SIL Open Font License 1.1. Use it for anything; just don't sell the font files on their own.
